

Power outage leaves Brookside in the dark

Updated: 12/24 8:50 pm

Fox 23

A falling tree limb may be to blame for a power outage in Tulsa's Brookside area.

Power was knocked out to about 3000 people Tuesday afternoon.

Businesses like Whole Foods and Wal-mart Neighborhood Market stayed open, but had to use generators to ring people up.

The power was restored around 4p.m.

PSO officials tell FOX23 they are going to have more power problems like this as the ice continues to melt.